Budget Response 2017

Responding to The Chancellor of the Exchequer's 2017 Budget Professor Carrie MacEwen said, 'The Academy welcomes the additional funding announced by the Chancellor in the budget which will go some way to meeting the rising demands on services and the costs needed for NHS reform. The lack of mention of social care is concerning and the Government needs to begin to view the health and care system as a whole in order to deliver a sustainable service to meet the current and future healthcare needs of the UK population.'
